

Background

Do No Harm Cambodia (DNHC) is a working group formed in 2014 by trainers and NGOs supported by Bread for the World who are concerned about the impacts of NGO work on local conflict. DNHC is formally hosted by the CCC.

Do No Harm (DNH) is one of the key working approaches of CCC's Governance Hub Program (GHP) 2017-2021

Goal

CSOs in Cambodia deliver their programs with conflict sensitivity so as to do no harm in the community.

Objective

By 2020, NGOs in Cambodia make changes to their project plans, implementation and monitoring according to the DNH framework.

Usefulness of DNH

DNH will help participating NGOs deal with critical questions such as the following:

- ▶ How can development aid, humanitarian assistance or peacebuilding work make conflicts worse – or better – by the ways in which they operate and the choices they make?
- ▶ What are the important effects of aid work in different contexts – and what are the effects of the context on the aid work?
- ▶ What are some practical methods for incorporating conflict sensitivity into context analysis, and then into program design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation?
- ▶ How can conflict sensitivity efforts be effectively monitored and evaluated, in ways that promote robust accountability and learning at all levels, from providers to local communities to organizational headquarters and donors?

What is DNH?

DNH is a predictable approach aimed at better understanding how aid interacts with conflict dynamics. DNH increases the application of conflict sensitivity in aid policy and practice, in order that projects minimize negative impacts and maximize positive impacts.

Do No Harm Trainers

DNH Trainers source from the Do No Harm Cambodia (DNHC) Team who are expert in Do No Harm approaches. Currently DNHC team consists of 18 members from CCC, Cord Cambodia, KCD, Mission Alliance, VBNK, WPM, ACT, ForumSyd Cambodia and other professional consultants.
